One Stop Neck Lump Clinic

Introduction
This leaflet explains what happens when you are referred to the One Stop Neck Lump Clinic as a result of your GP finding a lump that they think needs further investigation. This clinic aims to, where possible, carry out all of the investigations that are necessary to diagnose your problem.

What will happen at the clinic?
You will be seen by a senior doctor who will ask you for details of your medical history. The doctor will examine your neck and may need to examine the inside of your throat and will do this by using a small flexible endoscope.

If the doctor thinks it necessary, he will recommend that you have a biopsy (a sample of cells) taken from the lump.

You will go into another room and see a radiologist (X-ray doctor) who will take the biopsy.

An ultrasound scan may be used to help with obtaining the sample and give the doctor a clearer picture of the lump.

This is a painless scan, where gel is placed on the skin and a probe is passed over the area where the lump is.

A sample of cells will be taken from the lump, using a needle and syringe. It will feel similar to having a blood test.

After this you will be asked to sit in the waiting room for about 30 to 40 minutes while the biopsy is looked at by a cytopathologist.

The sample will be looked at under a microscope and analysed. If, for any reasons, not enough cells were obtained, the process may need to be repeated.

By carrying out these investigations, the doctor will be able to tell you if you need any further investigations or if you can be discharged.

If necessary, you may be asked to attend the X-ray Department for a Computed Tomography (CT), Magnetic Resonance Imaging (MRI) or both types of scans. This may take place on the same day as your clinic appointment or you may be asked... to return to hospital on another day.

Additional leaflets are available if you would like more information about these scans.

Results

It may take a while to obtain the results of the sample of cells that were taken from the lump, so it can be a good idea to bring someone with you for company, bring something to read and some small change to obtain a cup of tea or coffee or a snack. Remember to allow time if you are parking in the ‘pay and display’ hospital car park. Also please allow enough time (approximately 2 hours) if you do need to attend the X-ray department for scans.

When the results are ready you will see a doctor again who will explain the findings fully before discharging you or arranging further investigations. Your case may need to be discussed at a meeting, which is held on a Tuesday morning, where expert consultants, radiologist (X-ray doctors), histopathologists, cytologists (doctors who look at cells under a microscope) and other members of the team will review your results. If that is the case, you will be asked to attend an additional clinic appointment on the following Tuesday to discuss the findings.
